Ace of Bottles: Over the coming weeks, practice the art of open-heartedness. You may feel bruised or scarred by love, by life, that's okay. Recognise this point as the beginning of a new cycle for your heart. Seek new opportunities to connect, listen to what your heart has to say, attend to its needs, even if that means taking a risk. You have so much love to give!

Halloweentown 5: Women's Studies

Join Sophie for her first year at Witch University as she enters their women's studies program! Hang out with her friends as they get high and drink expensive coffee while discussing the lasting effects of human beauty standards on non-human Halloweentown residents! Will Sophie's privilege as a wealthy legacy cloud her judgement? Will student protests convince the university to establish a genderqueer word for witch or warlock? Will Sophie's hot RA go with her to the lecture on post-Kalabar political reform? Find out tonight at 8/7c only on Disney Channel!

Member of the Month: Amy

October Member of the Month is AMY (amy_yam)! Amy is super cool and adorable, which you can tell even when she is wearing a giant parka in Greenland

What is your ideal Halloween costume? For other people: I enjoy costumes of inanimate objects. For me: I have leopard-print footie pajamas that I've worn every few years for Halloween since I was approximately 13. They are warm and have pockets and are therefore ideal. Plus I really enjoy painting a cat nose and whiskers on my face.

If you had to hang a life-sized, full-body oil painting of a celebrity above your bed, who would you pick? It would need to be someone that would seem non-threatening at night. Is Ms. Frizzle an option?

What is your favorite thing about AS? The personal essays. Feeling like you're inside someone's world. That's what made me love AS originally and keeps me coming back.

Four friends went to a costume party dressed as Orange Is The New Black characters. They had what they later deemed a “successful evening” and each made out with multiple people. Based on the following clues, determine each person’s costume and number of make outs. Each option is used only once.

1. Lori made out with either the most people or the fewest people.
2. Megan made out with more people than Ashlyn.
3. The girl dressed as Alex made out with one fewer people than the girl dressed as Red.
4. Megan made out with fewer people than Lori.
5. The girl dressed as Alex made out with two fewer people than the girl dressed as Suzanne.

How to Have Lesbian Sex on a Broomstick*

A Guide for Witches and the Gravitationally Challenged by Carolyn

1. Park your broomstick in a horizontal position. Unless it comes with attachments, a vertical position isn't going to help anyone. (Even then. No one wants to get twig burn when trying to position a vibrator.)

2. Think of your broomstick like a sex swing, except instead of being attached to the ceiling, it's attached to metaphysical forces beyond mere human understanding, and instead of slipping and falling to the floor, your activity partner will slip and fall several miles to her death. With this in mind, it is important she balance very, very carefully, and also have impeccable upper body strength. You will find this helpful in more than one regard.

3. Avoid applying too much lube to either the base of your sex toys or to both hands, lest you lose your grip on your toy, or partner, or broomstick, or mortal existence. Silicone lube is less likely to freeze at higher altitudes, and is recommended where compatible with your toys.

4. If, in the throes of passion, you drift into another witch's territory, consider inviting her to join you rather than starting a battle that will plague the land for one hundred times one hundred years.

5. The easiest queer sex act to complete on a broomstick is scissoring. It is not the classiest, however.
