

A + BEE

Hi moonpies!

Happy 21st issue, little lambs! We are just barreling along in May towards our 6th camp and it has been all hands on deck here at Autostraddle dot com. We just cannot wait to see your faces on the mountain and to present you with the A-Camp Bee for six whole days! Since we last met, Chelsey visited the Wizarding World of Harry Potter in Orlando and has been in a daze ever since and Heather taught Quasar how to roll over. Now for the Bee!

Tarot for the Fortnight

Father of Cups

What are you burying right now? It's all very well maintaining that calm, composed exterior, and you've worked hard to be that person who's firmly in control. But there's something deeper going on. Try focusing less on what you're presenting to the world, and more on how it all feels underneath. It's okay to be vulnerable, to be human.

Dear Sour

by: Brittani

Dear Sour, What's the best dish to eat on a full moon to reap the full benefits?

Great question. Basically any food as long as you add the blood of your enemies. And if you don't want to do that, then any food that comes from the earth itself. Let it sit outside in the moonlight and whisper to it from your window. Tell it how cute and powerful it is and that it looks its most beautiful in natural moonlight. As you eat it, laugh as you make all of its power your own.

Meetup Recap

by: Whitney, Twin City Straddlers

Twin Cities Straddler, Emily Butler, hosted the first Unofficial Queer Skee-ball League meetup! A local fav, Pat's Tap, was the venue of choice for their old school alleys that only cost a quarter to play!

There have been talks of more Unofficial Queer Skee-ball League meetups in the future including creating matching jackets or patches.

CHOOSE YOUR OWN GAY-DVENTURE

As you make up your mind to go with Mr. Piddles, you realize this is the second time you've decided to blindly follow a cat around another dimension since you arrived for this interview. Mr. Piddles leads you out of the Planet, down the block, into a hospital, and right up to a nurse. Her eyes grow big. "Oh," she says. "You're late!"

She takes you through a set of double doors and down a really bright hallway. She ushers you into an office with a placard on the door that says "Director" and introduces you to the woman behind the desk.

The Director doesn't smile, doesn't reach to shake your hand. She slides a clipboard across her desk and says, "You have 24 hours to save the life of Dana Fairbanks. Choose wisely."

The clipboard contains a list of every queer TV medical professional you've ever heard of. To save Dana's life, do you pick:

- + Luisa Alver, OBGYN, Jane the Virgin
- + Callie Torres, Attending Orthopedic Surgeon, Grey's Anatomy
- + Arizona Robbins, Chief of Pediatric Surgery, Grey's Anatomy
- + Meh Yewll, Indogene Alien/Human General Practitioner, Defiance
- + Cosima Niehaus, Experimental Evolutionary Biology, Orphan Black
- + Leslie Shay, Paramedic, Chicago Fire
- + Lauren Lewis, General Practitioner Specializing in Fae, Lost Girl

Laura and Luna

Laura thinks Luna is a morality-policing goody two-shoes who has no idea how hard and dark the world can be.

Luna thinks Laura would rather hide behind her cynical superiority complex than harness the courage to believe the world can change.

Laura thinks she'll invite Luna out for one drink or whatever. She'll probably say no, but who cares.

Luna thinks one drink will be okay. Maybe she'll bring that book that reminded her of Laura. Maybe she'll let Laura borrow it.
